PRESS COMMUNIQUÉ

SURVEY OF COTTAGE INDUSTRIES.

The question of organising and developing cottage or rural industries with special reference to those industries which are suitable as subsidiary occupations for the agriculturists during the slack season has been under the consideration of the Government and, as a preliminary it has been decided that a survey of cottage industries in the Presidency—existing and potential—should first be made and that the task of developing and organising them and introducing new industries should then be taken in hand. The object of this survey is to collect detailed information in regard to existing cottage and rural industries, the methods in force, the tools and appliances used, and the number of persons employed in them, as also with reference to such questions as the availability of the requisite raw materials and markets for the finished products. It is hoped that the results of the survey will afford a basis for the revival and extension of rural industries on an economic footing and for the organisation on an increased scale of subsidiary occupations for the agriculturists. The scope of the survey will include the handloom and hand spinning industries and it is expected that the information obtained will assist the Department of Industries in devising measures for the amelioration of the economic condition of the weavers and for the improvement of the weaving industry generally. With improved organisation, the handloom weaving industry should be able to withstand the competition of power mills, since the weavers are able to turn out a larger variety of fabrics to meet the widely varying requirements of the market. A careful inquiry will be made into the economics of hand spinning with a view to ascertaining inter alia the counts of yarn which are most remunerative to the spinners as also the most suitable organisation for the distribution of raw cotton and the spun yarn. A special officer will be deputed to carry out the survey. The officers of the Department of Industries will render as much assistance as possible with technical advice and by placing at the disposal of the special officer such knowledge and experience as they may possess of particular industries. For example, the Textile Expert will carry out an intensive survey of a typical weaving centre which will serve as a model and the Sericultural Assistant will similarly conduct an intensive survey of one representative centre of sericultural operations. The survey will be carried out district by district and in the light of the experience gained by the survey of a district, the programme of work for the remaining districts will, if necessary, be suitably modified

If the survey is to be effective, and is to be carried out with due expedition, the close co-operation of Collectors, Revenue Divisional Officers and Tahsildars as well as of non-official gentlemen who are in close touch with the economic life and industrial possibilities of their districts will be essential. The Director of Industries is issuing to Tahsildars, through Collectors of districts, questionnaires with a view to eliciting preliminary information as to the existing local industries and the economic resources of the local area wherein they are carried on and of the people engaged in them. This information will serve as a basis for further detailed enquiries by the special officer into each cottage industry and the prospects of potential rural industries.

M. BAZL-UL-LAH,

CIRCULAR.

From—Lieut.-Col. A. J. H. RUSSELL, C.B.E., M.D., D.P.H., I.M.S., Director of Public Health, Madras.

To—all District Health Officers, Presidents of District Boards, Presidents of Taluk Boards, Civil Surgeon, Vizagapatam Agency, Chairmen of Municipal Councils, Municipal Health Officers, District Medical Officer, Ganjam, Health Officer, Cauvery-Mettur Project, Erode.

Government in G.O. No 801, P.H., dated 18th February 1927, have ordered that routine vaccination should be suspended during the hot season this year. The period of cessation in each district will be as during last year—vide appended statement.

2. The attention of all local bodies and Health Officers is drawn to this office circulars Nos. 167-V., dated 18th February 1922, 1270 H., dated 26th April 1923, 22 and 23-V., dated 3rd April 1925 and 14-V., dated 13th February 1926 prescribing the work to be carried out by them.

3 At the commencement of the off-season the vaccinators and Health Inspectors should be given clear instructions about the work to be done by them during this period and steps should be taken to see that it is done properly as birth registration still continues to be inaccurate. It is very necessary that all undetected births should be brought on the registers during the off-season, so that when vaccination is resumed the registers will have been brought up to date and no delays in serving notices, etc, be experienced

4. Health Inspectors should be directed to complete their vaccination inspection without delay and submit their vaccination annual reports by the due date and commence the vital statistics investigation at the earliest possible date.

5. It should be remembered that if any outbreak of smallpox occurs during the off-season, vaccination should be resumed forthwith and continued till the epidemic completely subsides Extra indents of lymph should be submitted to the King Institute for this purpose

For repeated infringement of the stipulations of the contract or for other justifiable reasons, he may also annul it recovering all losses sustainable by the school in consequence of the annulment, from the security deposited by the contractors or other moneys due to them, and in the event of any residue, by legal measures, if so advised.

The cistern of the Barometer is twenty-two feet above the level of the sea, and the receiver of the Rain Gauge is two feet from the ground. The wind, rain and general weather registered are for the current civil day—from midnight to midnight.

The total quantity of rain collected since 1st January is 0·55 inch, the average due for the same period being 1·17 inches.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the continuance of the protection of the steel industry in British India was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 7th February 1927 :—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the continuance of the protection of the steel industry in British India was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. At the outset of our proceedings, we considered the six different methods of conferring protection on the steel industry enumerated in paragraph 94 of the Report of the Indian Tariff Board regarding the continuance of protection to the Indian steel industry. As a result of our discussions, the great majority of us were satisfied that only two methods were practicable in present circumstances. The first of these is that embodied in the Bill by which duties are imposed on steel of British manufacture sufficient to protect the Indian manufacturer against competition from the United Kingdom and higher duties on steel imported from other countries. The second is a system by which uniform duties would be imposed on steel imported from any source, these duties being based on the difference between the fair selling prices for Indian steel and the weighted average prices of imported steel.

3. In order that the difference between the two methods might be clearly brought out, the Commerce Department of the Government of India supplied us with the amendments which would be necessary in the Bill and its Schedule, if it were decided to adopt the weighted average system without increasing or diminishing the degree of protection given. The Department also supplied us subsequently with a second series of amendments embodying a modification of this system by which certain classes of steel would become subject to (a) uniform basic duties, and (b) uniform additional duties, and the Governor General in Council would be empowered to modify the additional duties (but not the basic duties) whether by way of increase or of reduction. This modification of the weighted average system removes one of the objections to which it is open, viz., that it provides no means by which, without legislation, the amount of protection could be reduced, if a substantial increase in prices had rendered it altogether excessive.

4. We discussed at length the advantages and disadvantages of both systems, i.e., (a) differential duties with a lower rate on steel of British manufacture and a higher rate on steel not of British manufacture, and (b) the weighted average system modified by the division of the duty on such class of steel affected into a basic and an additional duty. A majority of us are of opinion that the first of these alternatives, which is the scheme adopted in the Bill, is preferable and should be adopted. In arriving at this conclusion, we have attached great weight to the principle embodied in the preamble to the Bill that the scheme of protection must have due regard to the well-being of the community. We are satisfied that the economic interest of India will be better served by the system of differential rates of duty on British and non-British steel than by a system which subjects all steel to uniform rates of duty based on the weighted average prices of imported steel. A weighted average system of duties must be unstable because a change in the relative level of the prices of British and Continental steel would lead to a change in the proportions in which steel made in India is sold in competition with steel from either source. A more serious objection is that the price both of standard steel and of fabricated steel would be raised unnecessarily, owing to the higher duty on British steel. As a result the cost of important public works involving the use of large quantities of steel would be increased, the manufacture of machinery in India would be rendered more difficult and the industrial development of the country would be retarded. It has been urged that the weighted average system, at any rate, diminishes the burden imposed on the users of steel which is not of British standard. We do not consider that this claim is well founded. Of the classes of steel to which the Bill applies differential rates of duty, the most important is steel bars, and in this case the difference between the duty on Continental bars proposed in the Bill and the duty required under the weighted average system is no more than Rs. 2 a ton. To that extent, the price of steel bars would be higher under the differential system in Calcutta and in any other area where Indian steel can compete effectively with imported steel. But in the areas which are nearer to the other great ports of India than they are to Jamshedpur, and where consequently Indian steel is at a disadvantage, it is possible for importers to raise the price of Continental steel bars to a point a little below the price at which British steel bars could be imported. Under the weighted average system, this point is higher by Rs. 9 a ton than it is under the differential system. We believe that, if the differential system is adopted, the consumer of non-standard steel in any area in which Indian steel cannot effectively compete will not in fact pay a higher price than he would under the weighted average system, but a lower price owing to the reduction in the price of British steel.

5. We considered, but were unable to accept, a suggestion for the amendment of the Bill so as to include provisions for securing the welfare of labour, for the limitation of dividends and for preventing industrial concerns which enjoy the benefit of protection from passing out of Indian into foreign hands. We think that the difficulties in the way of incorporating provisions of this kind in the Bill are insuperable.

6. Having approved by a majority the principle of differentiation in certain classes of steel between steel of British manufacture and steel not of British manufacture, we proceeded to a consideration of the details of the Bill.

Clause 2.—We considered a suggestion that the Bill contained no provision for the consequences which might follow a substantial decrease in the price of British steel, and we have amended clause 2 (1) of the Bill in order to provide for this contingency. It is proposed by the amendment to insert in section 3 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, a new sub-section empowering the Governor General in Council to increase, but not to reduce, the duty chargeable on articles of British manufacture, if the changes in prices are such as are likely to render ineffective the protection given to the Indian steel industry.

Clause 5.—We have made an amendment in this clause omitting certain words. As the clause stood before amendment, it would be impossible for the Governor General in Council without legislation to order a general inquiry into the condition of the steel industry before the 1st of April 1933. We think this restriction is undesirable, since the circumstances might be such as to render an inquiry imperative at an earlier date.

The Schedule.—We have made an amendment in Item 62 in Part IV in Schedule II to the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, as amended by the Bill. Under this item as it stood, certain kinds of steel bars which the Tariff Board considered should be subject only to a revenue duty became subject to a protective duty. The effect of the amendment made is to exclude such bars from the scope of the protective duty.

7. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India (Extraordinary), dated the 17th January 1927.

8. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I.

I desire to add that in the Select Committee questions were raised by me—

(1) as to why the Bill contains no reference to wagons, and

(2) as to the action taken on the Tariff Board's suggestion that the Railway Board should enter into a contract with the Steel Company to buy from them all heavy rails required by Indian Railways at a fixed price throughout the period of protection.

I refrained from moving an amendment to raise the duty on heavy rails because Sir Charles Innes assured me that negotiations for a contract on the lines recommended by the Tariff Board were now proceeding between the Railway Board and the Steel Company, and that if the negotiations broke down the question of enhancing the duty would be considered in the light of the recommendation of the Tariff Board. Sir Charles Innes also stated that the question of wagon bounties would be considered by the Tariff Board and that the Tariff Board's report would come up for consideration in September. In the meantime the amount of money available for bounties under the existing Steel Act was sufficient for orders likely to be placed in the current year. Sir Charles Innes promised to repeat these statements on the floor of the House.

M. A. JINNAH—7-2-27.

II

I am signing the report subject to the following minute of dissent:—

I hold that under the present circumstances, the Indian steel industry which is a basic industry and has every chance of being developed and made self-reliant, will have to be protected, but I hold that it should be protected after nationalising it, so that the losses which the nation may suffer during the period of depression may be made good from the profits which may be made during a period of prosperity. If nationalisation is not considered acceptable, I would propose that the industry should be protected by giving it bounties out of an amount to be raised by putting surcharge upon the Income-tax, the amount of bounty paid being made repayable, when the industry becomes prosperous. If this method of protection is adopted, its burden on the nation will be reduced to a minimum, and even that minimum burden will fall upon a class of people which is in a better position to bear it. Moreover, the adoption of this method of protection will enable the Legislature to impose certain conditions upon the industry, which are essential to safeguard interests of the community and specially of the workers engaged in that industry. If the method of paying bounties out of the proceeds of increased Income-tax is not acceptable, I would prefer the method of imposing certain minimum rate of protective import duties together with the grant of bounties up to the limit of the amount realised by protective duties. Unfortunately none of the abovementioned proposals were acceptable to the majority of the members of the Select Committee. The method of protecting an industry by imposing import duties has many disadvantages. The burden of protection may fall upon the people who may not be in a position to bear it. The Government is placed in possession of funds which may tempt them to continue protection unnecessarily. And it becomes more difficult to impose conditions which are necessary in the interest of the community and specially of working classes. As far as the last point is concerned, although the difficulty must be admitted to exist still fortunately as there is only one firm which is benefited by the protection, it is quite practicable for the present to impose the necessary conditions. I am sorry that the majority of members of Select Committee did not agree to the imposition of the condition. As between the method of differential duties as suggested in the Bill and method of weighted average duties I prefer the former.

* Subject to minute of dissent.

N. M. JOSHI—5-2-27.

III

We regret we have not been able to agree with the scheme of protection as embodied in the Bill approved by our colleagues.

We are keenly alive to the necessity of giving adequate protection to the Steel Industry in India, but our difference with our colleagues lies only in the methods to be adopted to achieve this end.

Though certain amendments have been made to the Bill as originally introduced by Government, yet the general scheme remains the same. The main scheme of the Bill is to differentiate between steel of British origin and of non-British origin. The scheme has been criticised as a scheme of Imperial preference but we were assured that this was not really Imperial preference but differentiation based upon the differences in the quality of steel imported. Even though we might be prepared to accept the assurance that Imperial preference was not sought to be introduced through this Bill, yet the fact remains that the difference in duty which is sought to be imposed is not based merely on the quality of goods but on the basis of the country of origin. We think it very undesirable to adopt any scheme of protective duties based upon the country of origin of the commodities imported. The acceptance of such a principle in any form is not merely unsound but it may lead to complications in our fiscal policy in future.

2. Though the greater proportion of the continental steel that is imported into India does not conform to British standard specifications, it has not been denied that standard steel is manufactured in the continent also. By imposing a higher duty on all continental steel irrespective of the fact whether it is standard steel or not, the continental manufacturer of standard steel is placed at a disadvantage in the Indian market as compared with the position of the British manufacturer. Such a discrimination in our opinion cannot be justified unless India is prepared deliberately to adopt the policy of British preference.

3. Though we are assured that all steel manufactured in the United Kingdom conforms to British standard specification, yet it is not unlikely that the British manufacturer taking advantage of the assured protection given to him in the Indian market for a period of seven years may lower the standard of British steel imported into this country. This result can be brought about either by deliberately lowering the standard or by a greater use of semi-finished continental steel. Our apprehensions in this respect are confirmed by the remark of the Tariff Board in paragraph 104 of the Report in which they observe: "The present prices of imported British steel on which our proposals are based reflect to a very large extent the economies rendered possible by the use of semi-finished continental material". In any case there is a likelihood that the rejections of the British manufacture may be sent to India in larger quantities.

4. These are some of our main objections against the scheme proposed by the Government and for these reasons we regret we cannot agree to that scheme. After carefully considering the various alternative schemes suggested by the Tariff Board we have come to the conclusion that a uniform duty based on the weighted average system with a basic duty which will not be altered for seven years would be the best in the circumstances. Under the scheme that we propose there would be a basic duty calculated upon the present selling price of British standard steel together with an additional duty to protect Indian steel against continental steel which sells at a lower price. If the price of British or continental steel increases or decreases the Governor-General in Council is given the power to decrease or increase the additional duty as the case may be. This modified scheme that we propose will meet the main objections urged against the average weighted system as proposed by the Tariff Board. Our scheme differs from that suggested by the Tariff Board, in that we have proposed the levy of a basic and an additional duty in place of the one uniform duty suggested by them. The basic and additional duty that we propose would be levied upon all steel irrespective of the country of origin. By fixing the basic duty for a period of seven years the steel industry is assured a minimum protection during this period and this would achieve the object of attracting fresh capital into the steel industry. The power to alter the additional duty which we propose to vest in the Governor-General in Council will be an effective safeguard against any excessive or ineffective protection.

5. We are conscious of the fact that under our scheme the price of British standard steel will be a little higher than the corresponding price under the Government Bill. Though this may be considered to be a defect inherent in the scheme that we propose we may urge that the additional burden on the user of British steel is counterbalanced by the lower price of continental steel. None of the alternative schemes suggested by the Tariff Board can be said to be entirely flawless and in our opinion the scheme that we have proposed seems to be the best under the circumstances. We append herewith a draft of the Bill embodying the scheme suggested by us.

IV

Owing to the meetings of the Railway Finance Committee and this Committee having been mostly fixed on the same days and at the same hour I was unable to attend all the meetings of this Committee as I had intended to do. My efforts to get different times fixed for the meetings of these two Committees were fruitless. The Honourable the Member for Commerce who is also the Member for Railways could have easily granted my request but he was adamant. I appealed to the Chairman but although he was willing, he confessed he was powerless to help me.

I have signed another minute of dissent along with my honourable friend Mr Chetty and other honourable members. I entirely agree with that minute in so far as it eliminates the principle of Imperial preference from this Bill even to the point of extending a little preference to continental steel. But I prefer the combined system of duties and bounties which I have hereinafter developed and which has now been in force since September 1924. I am certain that an overwhelming majority of the people of this country will refuse to countenance Imperial preference in any shape or form; this is not due to any hostility towards the British people—far from that—but to our deep-seated conviction based on the painful experience of nearly two centuries that the British imperialists and capitalists are at the bottom of all our troubles, they have ruthlessly exploited and enslaved us at home and they have with equal cynicism humiliated us abroad. To expect a people to show preference towards their oppressors is to expect the impossible and to call upon them to do so is to add insult to injury; rather the consensus of opinion in this country would be towards the boycott of British steel. It is amazing that the Government and the Tariff Board should have so signally failed to understand the springs of action which govern the human mind; even if they felt convinced about the soundness of their proposals on economic and financial grounds, they ought to have realized that this fundamental psychological fact in Indian public affairs to-day was fatal to their accomplishment. All India is in favour of granting adequate protection to a national and basic industry like steel, but if this important question is to be mixed up with the fantastic proposal of Imperial preference and if as a result the grant of protection is imperilled or even delayed, the entire responsibility for the grave and disastrous consequences that must ensue will rest on the shoulders of the Tariff Board and the Government.

While the differential duties merit our unequivocal condemnation on political grounds it is not at all clear that they are a sound proposition on economic grounds either. For one thing the method adopted by the Board is purely speculative and depends for its success on the working of forces which this Bill cannot control. Secondly, curious as it may appear, even if the full results of the Board's proposals materialise they will give to the industry in the first four years the least protection when it requires the most. Thirdly, it imposes an intolerable and wholly unnecessary burden on the consumer of certain continental products in Burma, Eastern Bengal, Assam, Madras Presidency, Central Provinces, Bombay, Deccan, Gujarat and Sind without conferring the least benefit on the Indian industry. The amount of this unnecessary burden is approximately Rs 40 lakhs a year, and it falls almost entirely on the poor and the middle classes, and yet in spite of this huge sacrifice not a single ton of the Tata Steel is thereby protected; the reason is that these places are situated far away from Jamshedpur—the base of the operations of the Tatas. The result is that the unfortunate consumer suffers heavily; the Tatas do not benefit at all and the Finance Member is richer by Rs 40 lakhs a year which might lead to another proposal for extravagant additions to the salaries and emoluments of the superior services. In so far as the Board's proposals hurt the consumer without benefiting the industry they amount to a breach of one of the cardinal conditions on which the Fiscal Commission recommended protection; fourthly, while the consumer of continental steel is thus uselessly mulcted to the tune of Rs. 40 lakhs a year for nobody's benefit in particular the amount of solicitude shown by the Board for the consumer of the British steel is touching in the extreme; the protective tariff against British steel is reduced to a minimum although it is clear that if the extent of protection against British steel was fairly generous the period during which the industry would require protection would be considerably less than seven years; under the Board's proposals which are embodied in this Bill the protective duties against certain products of British steel are virtually abolished, e.g., the protective duty against rails and galvanized sheets which are almost wholly imported from the United Kingdom is barely 2½ per cent; British rail bars and structurals are also favoured though not to the same extent; the only case where protective duty against British steel is increased is on plates; but while the increase on British plates is 15 per cent that on the continental is nearly 100 per cent.

Except on the point of Imperial preference the scheme evolved by certain honourable members in the minute of dissent I have signed is open more or less to the same financial objections; it has also one serious additional disadvantage, if the Government scheme fail the responsibility will be on the Tariff Board, if the scheme evolved in the minute, untried as it is before, does not succeed the responsibility will be on the shoulders of the Assembly.

There remains to be considered the scheme of protection based on the combination of protective duties and the payment of bounties. In paragraph 95 of its report the Tariff Board dismisses this scheme on the ground that "a system of bounties is open to objection on financial grounds. We should hesitate to commit Government to the payment of bounties for a period of seven years"; the Board gives no arguments and states no reason for a summary rejection of a system which has been in force since September 1924 and which has given satisfactory results as the Board itself admits. The combined system of tariff duties and bounties has stood the test of time; it has been established after the most careful investigation, and each succeeding enquiry has confirmed its wisdom and utility. It has the merit of giving adequate protection to the industry without unduly taxing the consumer; moreover, I do not wish to commit Government to the payment of bounties beyond the amount received from the protective duties; it therefore only remains necessary to show that the receipts from the protective duties will be sufficient to meet the sum required for payment of bounties over the period of seven years; the Board's attitude seems to be based on the view it took in paragraph 98 of its first report, viz., that the extra revenue from which the bounties are to be paid is a vanishing quantity. The figures supplied by the Board itself—although they are unduly cautious—clearly establish that there is no foundation whatever for the imports of foreign steel declining to any appreciable extent; the total requirements of India are to-day in the neighbourhood of 12 lakhs of tons of steel every year, on the Board's own showing the output of the Indian industry cannot exceed five lakhs of tons a year during the whole of period of protection. I am not taking into account the normal expansion of the demand for steel during the seven years; we have than 700,000 tons of foreign steel including rails and galvanized sheets against which to impose protective duties and the number of tons on which we will be called upon to pay bounties is not more and is not likely to be more than 300,000 tons every year; on the figures which I have worked out I estimate that without the imposition of differential additional duties the receipt from protective duties alone on the basis fixed by the Board would amount to Rs 65,53,000 while the bounty to be paid is Rs. 25,52,000 lakhs a year; it is clear that there is the fullest margin for the payment of bounties without imposing an additional burden on the consumer which as I have shown is nearly 40 lakhs a year and which will make the receipts from protective duties amount to over a crore of rupees while the sum required for payment of bounties is Rs. 25,52,000 only. I claim no finality for these figures although I am confident that they are fairly approximate. We can therefore safely recommend that the present system of combined duties and bounties which protects the industry and the consumer alike should be continued; under the Government proposals the protection to the indigenous industry is precarious, but the protection to the steel from the United Kingdom is definitely secured while the burden on the consumer is equally definitely increased.

The amendment made by the Select Committee in clause 2 (f) of the Bill will prevent rejections from the United Kingdom being passed off as standard steel and will thus prevent any undue hardship on the continental steel and the indigenous industry; but in so far as the British manufacturer imports from the continent cheap blooms and billets he will get the undue advantage of a lower duty.

The Board recommended that the protection which it proposed should be definitely secured for seven years; the Select Committee by making a change and allowing an earlier enquiry has taken a reactionary step; the precarious protection that the Board gave will be rendered still more precarious.

My friend Mr. Joshi agrees with the minute in so far as it develops the system of duties and bounties combined; my friend

Mr. M. K. Acharya agrees with the whole of this minute and has therefore appended his signature to it.

We claim that no method of protection is sound which does not satisfy the conditions laid down by the Fiscal Commission in their report. These conditions require that unless the protection given leads to the investment of fresh capital in the industry to end the consequent reduction in prices as a result of competition the system has failed; under the Board's proposals the protection given is so precarious that even if it succeeds it can only save the Tata Steel Company but cannot attract fresh capital; under the scheme we have worked out the combined system of duties and bounties will secure adequate protection as experience of the last three years has proved. We therefore recommended that the Bill should be so amended as:—

(1) To ensure the grant of adequate protection to the Indian Steel Industry for a period of seven years from 1st April 1927;

(2) To eliminate from its clauses any trace of Imperial preference direct or indirect;

(3) To impose uniform duties equivalent to the difference between the fair selling price and the higher scale of the foreign prices;

(4) To secure the payment of a bounty which will give the assistance necessary to enable the Indian manufacturer to compete with the lower scale of the foreign prices; and

(5) To fix the maximum payment of the bounties at the amount recoverable from the protective duties.

We also recommend that the Bill be referred back to the Select Committee with instructions to amend it on the lines laid down above

[As amended by the Select Committee.]

(Words printed in italics indicate the amendments suggested by the Committee.)

A Bill to provide for the continuance of the protection of the steel industry in British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient, in pursuance of the policy of discriminating protection of industries in British India with due regard to the well-being of the community, that increased import duties should continue to be levied on certain iron and steel articles for the purpose of fostering and developing the steel industry in British India, and that the rates of the duties leviable in the application of that policy should be fixed for a period of seven years from the 1st day of April, 1927; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Steel Industry (Protection) Act, 1927.

(2) It shall come into force on the 1st day of April, 1927.

Amendment of section 3, Act VIII of 1894.

2. (1) For sub section (4) of section 3 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, the following sub sections shall be substituted, namely :—

"(4) If the Governor General in Council is satisfied, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, that articles of British manufacture chargeable with duty under Part VII of the Second Schedule are being imported into British India at such a price as is likely to render ineffective the protection intended to be afforded by such duty to similar articles manufactured in India, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, increase such duty to such extent, as he thinks necessary.

"(5) If the Governor General in Council is satisfied, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, that articles not of British manufacture chargeable under Part VII of the Second Schedule with a higher duty than similar articles of British manufacture are being imported into British India from any place outside India at such a price as is likely to render ineffective or excessive the protection intended to be afforded by such duty to similar articles manufactured in India, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, increase or reduce such duty to such extent as he thinks necessary either generally or in respect of such articles when imported from or manufactured in any country or countries specified in the notification:

Provided that the duty leviable on any such article shall in no case be less than the duty leviable on a like article of British manufacture

(6) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe the conditions subject to which articles shall be deemed to be of British manufacture for the purposes of this section and of the Second Schedule."

(2) In the Second Schedule to the same Act there shall be made the amendments specified in the Schedule to this Act.

(3) The amendments made by this section other than those made in Parts I and II of the Second Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, shall have effect only up to the 31st day of March, 1934.

Statutory inquiry.

3. The Governor-General in Council shall, not later than the 31st day of March, 1933, cause to be made, by such persons as he may appoint in this behalf, an inquiry as to the extent, if any, to which it is necessary to continue the protection of the steel industry in British India and as to the manner in which any protection found necessary should be conferred.

(2) In the Second Schedule to the same Act there shall be made the amendments specified in the Schedule to this Act.

(3) The amendments made by this section other than those made in Parts I and II of the Second Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, shall have effect only up to the 31st day of March 1934.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 7th February 1927 :—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY BILL No. 25 OF 1927.

A Bill further to amend the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, and the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, and the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, for certain purposes hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Insolvency (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 14, Act III of 1909.

2. Section 14 of the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of section 14, and to that section the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

"(2) A debtor in respect of whom an order of adjudication, whether made under this Act or under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, has been annulled owing to his failure to apply or to prosecute an application for his discharge shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition without the leave of the Court by which the order of adjudication was annulled. Such Court shall not grant leave unless it is satisfied either that the debtor was prevented by any reasonable cause from presenting or prosecuting his application, as the case may be, or that the petition is founded on facts substantially different from those contained in the petition on which the order of adjudication was made."

Amendment of section 21, Act III of 1909.

3. In sub-section (1) of section 21 of the same Act, after the words "annul the adjudication" the following words shall be added, namely :—

"and the Court may, of its own motion or on application made by the official assignee or any creditor, annul any adjudication made on the petition of a debtor who was, by reason of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 14, not entitled to present such petition."

Amendment of section 10, Act V of 1920.

4. In sub-section (2) of section 10 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, for the words "made under this Act" the words "whether made under the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or under this Act" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 35, Act V of 1920.

5. In section 35 of the same Act, after the words "annul the adjudication" the following words shall be added, namely :—

"and the Court may, of its own motion or on application made by the receiver or any creditor, annul any adjudication made on the petition of a debtor who was, by reason of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 10 not entitled to present such petition"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India that the absence of a provision in the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909 (III of 1909), on the lines of section 10(2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 (V of 1920), leads to a large number of infructuous applications for adjudication after annulment of insolvency. The Bill is designed to bar such applications under the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act without the leave of the Court, whether the previous proceedings were under Act III of 1909 or Act

V of 1920. When an insolvent obtains an adjudication on an application presented without leave of the Court, the Bill provides for its annulment by the Court on its own motion or at the instance of the official assignee or any creditor.

The Bill further seeks to bring the provisions of the Provincial Insolvency Act into line with the amendments proposed to be made in the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act.

Amendment of section 43, Mad. Act IV of 1889. 2. In sub-clause (d) of clause B of section 43 of the Madras Salt Act, 1889, for the words "five per centum" the words "such percentage as the Central Board of Revenue may fix" shall be substituted. Mad. IV of 18

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under section 43 B (4) of the Madras Salt Act, IV of 1889 (Madras), one of the charges that may be imposed on salt removed from any factory is a cess, representing the excess of the actual cost of the preventive establishment maintained at the factory over 5 per cent of the duty collected on the salt issued from the factory in the previous year. When the Act was passed the duty on salt was Rs. 2-8 per maund. It is now only Rs. 1-4 per maund. Meanwhile, the cost of preventive staff has largely increased, owing to the general rise in scales of pay since the War. The result is that, whereas the original 5 per cent of duty was usually sufficient to cover the cost of the preventive staff, and no cess had normally to be recovered from the licensees, the situation is now reversed. It is the intention of the Government that normally the cost of preventive establishment should be borne by themselves, not by the licensees. The provision for the levy of cess was intended only to apply to exceptional cases. In order to meet the changed situation created by the lowering of duty and the increase of establishment charges, it is proposed to amend the sub-section referred to so as to empower the Central Board of Revenue to prescribe the percentage of duty above which the cost of the establishment is to be borne by the licensees, and thus to fix it so that in a year of average sales no charge on account of establishment will be borne by the licensee of a factory properly situated and efficiently managed.

9. For the purpose of providing or maintaining or of providing and maintaining lighthouses, whether within or beyond the limits of British India, for the benefit of ships voyaging to or from British India or between ports in British India, the Governor General in Council shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, cause light-dues to be levied and collected in respect of every ship arriving at or departing from any port in British India.

Rates of light-dues leviable

10. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe rates, not exceeding two annas per ton, at which light-dues shall be payable, and may prescribe different rates for different classes of ships, or for ships of the same class when in use for different purposes or in different circumstances.

(2) Light-dues payable in respect of a ship shall be paid by the owner or master of the ship on its arrival at, and before its departure from, any port in British India :

Provided that, if light-dues have been paid in accordance with the provisions of this Act in respect of any ship, no further dues shall become payable in respect of that ship for a period of thirty days from the date on which the dues so paid became payable.

Receipts for light-dues

11. Light-dues shall be paid to the Customs-collector who shall grant to the person paying the same a receipt in writing specifying—

(a) the port at which the dues have been paid ;

(b) the amount of the payment ;

(c) the date on which the dues become payable ; and

(d) the name, tonnage and other proper description of the ship in respect of which the payment is made.

Ascertainment of tonnage.

12. (1) For the purpose of the levy of light-dues, a ship's tonnage shall be reckoned as under the Merchant Shipping Acts for dues payable on a ship's tonnage, with the additions required under section 85 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, with respect to deck cargo. 57 & 58 Vict., C. 60.

(2) In order to ascertain the tonnage of any ship for the purpose of levying light-dues, the Customs-collector may—

(a) if the ship is registered under any law for the time being in force in British India or under the law of any foreign country in respect of which an Order in Council has been made under section 84 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, that ships of that country shall be deemed to be of the tonnage denoted in their certificates of registry or other national papers (any such ship being hereafter in this section referred to as a registered ship), require the owner or master or other person having possession of the ship's register or other papers denoting her tonnage to produce the same for inspection and, if such owner, master or other person refuses or neglects to produce the register or papers, as the case may be, or otherwise to satisfy the Customs-collector as to the tonnage of the ship, cause the ship to be measured and the tonnage to be ascertained ; or 57 & 58 Vict., C. 60

(3) If any person refuses or neglects to produce any register or other papers or otherwise to satisfy the Customs-collector as to the true tonnage of any ship when required to do so under this section, such person shall be liable to pay the expenses of the measurement of the ship and of the ascertainment of the tonnage, and, if the ship is a registered ship, shall further be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

Recovery of light-dues, expenses and costs.

13. (1) If the owner or master of any ship refuses or neglects to pay to the Customs-collector on demand the amount of any light-dues or expenses payable under this Act in respect of the ship, the Customs-collector may seize the ship and the tackle, apparel and furniture belonging thereto, or any part thereof, and detain the same until the amount of the dues or expenses, together with the costs of the seizure and detention, is paid.

(2) If any part of such dues, expenses or costs remains unpaid after the expiry of five days following the date of the seizure, the Customs-collector may cause the ship or other thing seized to be sold, and with the proceeds of the sale may satisfy the dues, expenses or costs remaining unpaid, together with the costs of the sale, and shall repay the surplus, if any, to the person by whom the same were payable.

Refusal of port-clearance.

14. The officer whose duty it is to grant a port-clearance for any ship shall not grant the port clearance until the amount of all light-dues, expenses and costs payable in respect of the ship under this Act and of any fines imposed thereunder has been paid, or until security for the payment thereof has been given to his satisfaction.

Determination of disputes as to liability for payment.

15. If any dispute arises as to whether light-dues, expenses or costs are payable in respect of any ship under this Act or as to the amount of such dues, expenses or costs, the dispute shall, on application made in this behalf by either of the disputing parties, be heard and determined by a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction at the place where the dispute arises, and the decision of such Magistrate shall be final.

Light-dues payable at one port recoverable at another.

16. (1) If the master of any ship in respect of which any light-dues are payable at any port causes the ship to leave such port without having paid the same, the Customs-collector at that port may by writing require the Customs-collector at any other port in British India to which the ship may proceed or in which she may be to recover the dues remaining unpaid.

(2) Any Customs collector to whom such a requisition is directed shall proceed to levy such sum as if it were payable under the Act at the port at which he is the Customs-collector, and a certificate by the Customs-collector at the port at which the light-dues first became payable, stating the amount payable, shall be sufficient proof in any proceeding under section 13 or section 15 that such amount is payable.

Penalty for evading payment of light-dues.

17. (1) If the owner or master of a ship evades or attempts to evade the payment of any light-dues, expenses or costs payable in respect of the ship under this Act, he shall, on conviction by a

Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction in any port to which the vessel may proceed or in which she may be found, be punishable with fine which may extend to five times the amount of the sum payable

(2) In any proceeding before a Magistrate in a prosecution under sub-section (1), any such certificate as is mentioned in sub-section (2) of section 16, stating that the owner or master has evaded such payment, shall be sufficient proof of the evasion, unless the owner or master shows to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that the departure of the vessel without payment of the sum was caused by stress of weather, or that there was lawful or reasonable ground for such departure.

Exemption from payment of light-dues.

18. The following ships shall be exempted from the payment of light dues under this Act, namely :—

(a) any ship belonging to His Majesty or the Government or to a foreign Prince or State and not carrying cargo or passengers for freight or fares, and

(b) any ship of a tonnage of less than thirty tons;

and the Governor-General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, exempt any other ships or classes of ships or ships performing specified voyages from such payment, either wholly or to such extent only as may be specified in the notification.

Refund of excess payments

19. Where light-dues have been paid in respect of any ship in excess of the amount payable under this Act, no claim to refund of such excess payment shall be admissible, unless it is made within three months from the date of such payment.

ACCOUNTS.

Accounts, etc.

20. (1) The Governor General in Council shall cause to be maintained a separate account of all amounts received by way of light-dues, expenses, costs and fines under this Act and of all expenditure incurred for the purposes of this Act, and shall cause such account to be laid before the Central Advisory Committee, as soon as possible, after the close of each financial year.

(2) The Governor General in Council shall cause to be laid before the Central Advisory Committee before the close of each financial year a statement of the estimated receipts under, and expenditure for the purposes of, this Act during the forthcoming year.

RULES.

Power to make rules.

21. (1) The Governor General in Council may make rules consistent with this Act to carry into effect the purposes thereof.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. Under the Devolution Rules, "lighthouses (including their approaches) beacons, lightships and buoys" are a central subject, but are now administered by Local Governments as agents of the Government of India under the rules made under section 45A of the Government of India Act. Statutory powers are also vested in Local Governments by the Burma, Madras and Sind Coast-lights Acts. The object of the present Bill is to vest in the Governor General in Council the statutory powers necessary for the discharge of his responsibilities in order that this subject may, in future, be directly administered by the Central Government.

2. Under the present system of administration there are considerable differences from province to province, not only in the method of administration, but also in finance. Light-dues are levied in some provinces, but not in others, and, where levied, they vary in the method of calculation, as well as in amount. In Madras, there is a separate Coast-lights fund, to which light-dues are credited and from which all expenditure on coast lights is met. The Burma light dues, on the other hand, are credited to Central revenues, and expenditure is met from grants voted by the Legislative Assembly. In Sind, again, light-dues are also credited to Central revenues, and expenditure is met from grants voted by the Legislative Assembly. On the other hand, all lighthouses in the Bombay Presidency proper, except the lights of Bombay Port and its approaches, are financed from the Bombay Minor Ports funds, to which passing trade contributes nothing. The whole cost of the Perim lights and part of the cost of the Aden lights are borne by Central revenues, and the Orissa lights are a charge partly on Central and partly on Provincial revenues.

3. The general principles of the Bill are based on Part XI of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and the Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act, 1898, and parts of the existing Coast-lights Acts are also incorporated. "Lighthouse" is defined so as to include "any light vessel, fog-signal, buoy, beacon, or any mark, sign or apparatus exhibited or used for the guidance of ships." This definition covers wireless beacons, wireless fog-signals and other direction giving apparatus used for the guidance of ships. All lighthouses will be classified as either—

(a) coast or general lighthouses, or

(b) port or local lighthouses

The superintendence and management of all general lighthouses will be vested in the Governor General in Council. Local lighthouses will be administered by a local lighthouse authority, which will usually be a port authority. Certain powers of inspection and control over local lighthouses are reserved to the Governor General in Council, as being the general lighthouse authority. Provision is also made for the management of general lighthouses by a local authority, or of local lighthouses by the Governor General in Council, by arrangement and on payment. This would be a matter of convenience and economy.

4. For the purposes of lighthouse administration, it is proposed that the coasts of India should be divided into districts, based on the major ports. The Port Officer of the major port would be the Superintendent of Lighthouses in the district, and would be in executive control of the general lighthouse administration. For technical supervision, the Bill provides for the appointment of a Chief Inspector of Lighthouses in British India, and also for the appointment of District Inspectors, who would be engineers, with practical experience of Light-house engineering

5. It is intended that lighthouse expenditure should no longer be a charge on general revenues, but should be covered by dues levied on shipping. The Bill, therefore, provides for the maintenance of a separate account of lighthouse receipts and expenditure, and it is intended that this account should be maintained on commercial lines, showing that expenditure is covered by dues, and that receipts from dues are spent on lighthouse services. The Bill also provides for the appointment of a Central Advisory Committee, which will consist of persons representing the interests affected or having special knowledge of the subject. The Central Advisory Committee will correspond in constitution and functions to the Advisory Committee on New Lighthouse Works in the United Kingdom. The annual accounts and budget will be placed before them, and they will be asked to advise on new works, the position and character of existing lighthouses, the rates of light dues, rules, and on the lighthouse system generally. District Advisory Committees to advise on local questions may also be appointed, if desirable.

6. The cost of local lighthouses will ordinarily be met, as at present, from port dues levied under the Indian Ports Act, 1908. But clause 9 of the Bill permits receipts from light dues to be used "for the purpose of providing or maintaining lighthouses . . . . . for the benefit of ships voyaging to or from British India or between ports in British India". And grants from the light-dues may be given for the provision or maintenance of local lighthouses which are also used as marks by passing trade.

7. The Bill extends to the whole of British India, which is the limit of the legislative power of the Indian Legislature. But in addition to lighthouses in British India, the Government of India already administer lighthouses in the Persian Gulf and in the southern part of the Red Sea. And it is possible that they may also be asked to administer the colonial lights at Minicoy and in Ceylon, which are now managed direct by the Board of Trade. It is possible also that some arrangement may be made in respect of lighthouses in Indian States similar to the arrangement which already exist in Madras. In that event, it may be desired to bring all such lighthouses into a single administration with a common account of revenue and expenditure. In order, therefore, to cover a possible extension on these lines, clause 9 of the Bill has been drafted so as to permit the expenditure of light-dues levied in British India on lighthouses "whether within or beyond the limits of British India," provided always that such lighthouses are "for the benefit of ships voyaging to or from British India, or between ports in British India.".

8. Clause 10 of the Bill provides that every ship arriving at or departing from a port in British India shall pay a light-due, not exceeding two annas per net register ton, subject to a periodical limit of thirty days. Different rates may be prescribed for different classes of ships. Clause 18, following the existing Acts, exempts altogether ships of less than thirty tons. It also empowers the Governor-General in Council by notification to exempt any ships or classes of ships or ships performing specified voyages from payment of dues either wholly or in part.

9. The powers taken in clauses 5 and 7 of the Bill for the inspection and control of local lighthouses follow generally the powers of general lighthouse authorities in sections 652 and 653 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. In the United Kingdom, however, a local light-house authority cannot erect or remove any lighthouse, buoy or beacon or vary its character without the previous sanction of the general lighthouse authority. But the control of the general lighthouse authorities in the United Kingdom is much closer than is possible or desirable in a country of great distances like India. The Bill, therefore, only requires that one month's previous notice of any change should be given to the Governor-General in Council, and also empowers the local light-house authority to take immediate action, without previous notice, in cases of emergency.

§ 1 Statutory power to inspect a local lighthouse is vested only in the Chief Inspector of Lighthouses. No Superintendent or District Inspector may inspect without the order in writing of the Governor-General in Council.

The Bill further provides that a direction by the Governor-General in Council under clause 7 shall only be made after inspection or such other inquiry as he thinks fit, when he is satisfied that it is necessary for the safety, or otherwise in the interests, of shipping.

10. The rest of the Bill requires no detailed explanation.
